McDonald's Values

Our Brand Mission

For us to achieve our brand mission of being “our customers’ favourite place and way to eat”, we need to provide the best working experience for all of our employees. So we formalised our beliefs into our People Mission.

Our People Mission

Our People Mission is to be recognised as an “Employer of Opportunity”.

Our Values

Our People Mission is brought to life by our company values.

We give back to our communities

We take seriously the responsibilities that come with being a leader. We help our customers build better communities, support RMHC, and leverage our size, scope and resources to help make the world a better place. We are committed to sustainable business practices and are determined to conduct our operations in a manner that does not compromise the ability of future generations to meet their needs.

We grow our business profitably

Our stakeholders support our ability to serve our customers. In return, we work to provide sustained, profitable growth for all members of our system and our investors.

We believe in the McDonald's System

McDonald's business model, depicted by the “three-legged stool” of owner/operators, suppliers, and company employees, is our foundation, and the balance of interests among the three groups is key.

We strive continually to improve

We consider ourselves a learning organisation that is green and growing which anticipates and responds to changing customer, employee, system and community needs through constant evolution and innovation.

We operate our business ethically

Sound ethics is good business. At McDonald's, we hold ourselves and conduct our business to the highest possible standards of fairness, honesty, and integrity. We are individually accountable and collectively responsible.

We place the customer experience at the core of all we do

Our customers are the reason for our existence. We demonstrate our appreciation by providing them with high quality food and superior service, in a clean, welcoming environment, at great value. Our goal is outstanding QSC&V for each customer every time.

We are committed to our people

We provide opportunity, recognise talent, and develop leaders. We believe that a diverse team of well-trained individuals working together in an environment that fosters respect and drives high levels of engagement is essential to our continued success.

Crew Pay

McDonald's Crew members are paid weekly for all hours worked including open, close, crew meetings, rap sessions, safety committee meetings, training, counselling and orientation sessions, in accordance with the applicable Award or Agreement. You will find your Award Summary in this Policies and Procedures manual.

You must ensure that you clock on and off at the start and end of your shift and for any meal breaks that you take. If any changes are made to your time punches you'll be asked to approve/verify any changes by signing a Time Punch Approval Form. All of your time punches for the week (Monday to Sunday) are set out on your payslip showing the hours worked on each day.

You may be able to access your payslip online. To read your payslip, please refer to the example of a crew payslip below, which shows both earnings and taxation deductions. If you would like additional clarification, please speak to your management team.

Pay Rates

The Award Summaries for both Crew and Maintenance Employees (Cleaners) appear in a summary in this Manual, outlining the conditions of employment and hourly rates of pay. Should you have any queries about your pay or entitlements, please speak to your Restaurant Manager/Licensee.

- All employees who do not have a Tax File number or cannot find their Tax File Number should complete a Tax File Number Application/Inquiry Form. Once you have obtained your tax file number, you must provide it to the Restaurant Manager who will forward your Tax File number to the payroll officer for your restaurant.

Unless the Payroll Officer receives an employee's Tax File number within 28 days from the employee's start date, then tax at 48.25% will be deducted.

Employees who have completed the Tax File Number Application/Enquiry should indicate this on the Employment Declaration Form (Point No. 8)

- Employees who have not provided their Tax File Number and have not completed a Tax File Number Application/Enquiry Form will be taxed at 48.25% immediately.

Crew Meal Policy

Depending on the length of your shift, you may receive a rest pause or meal break specified under the Award or Agreement for your State. You may be entitled to a half price meal on your meal break, or 30 minutes before or after your shift. If you have a meal break during your shift, you must clock off while you take it.

Managers must authorise and receive payment of employee meals. Employee meals are to be consumed in the crew room and cannot be taken from the restaurant. Eating or drinking in the walk-in or on the floor is not permitted.

It is extremely important that when taking employee meals or serving fellow crew that your restaurant's proper procedures are carefully followed. The same care should be taken when serving friends or family, to avoid misunderstandings.

Giving Away or Receiving Free Food

You may from time to time be asked by customers or friends to give away food, or find you are given it without asking. At no time should you give or receive free food. Giving away or accepting food without payment is a very serious breach of restaurant policy that may lead to disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment. If a product needs to be replaced (for whatever reason) you should always check with a Manager before doing so.

Recording of unsold product

All unsold products must be recorded as waste and thrown away. No left over or waste product is to be consumed by employees or taken from the restaurant.

Cash Register Policy

You will be required to sign a Cash Register Policy, which will be explained by your Restaurant Manager. Some main points to remember are:

- Always count your float before serving.
- Only use the register assigned to you. Do not let anyone else use your assigned register.
- Notify a Manager if you require a refund, if a customer leaves their change or if you are unsure of a register procedure.

We understand that people occasionally make mistakes resulting in a cash register being short. For this reason, you will not be required to make up cash shortages. However, this is a serious matter and if you have a significant cash shortage you will be notified and your cash register procedures will be reviewed. Failure to follow the Cash Register Policy may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment.

Scheduling & Rosters

Crew Scheduling

One of your greatest benefits at McDonald's is flexibility in work schedules. At the time you are hired, you should set up an availability time that fits in with your school, family or outside activity demands. When this schedule needs to be changed, let your Restaurant Management Team know two weeks in advance so this request can be honoured whenever possible. All requests for days off will be honoured where operationally possible.

Your management team takes pride and care in scheduling sufficient crew to serve our customers. If you fail to show for your rostered shift, you affect our customers and Management, as well as your fellow crew working that shift.

Your work schedule will be posted seven (7) days prior to the next work week. You are expected to work as scheduled, unless excused by your Restaurant Management Team. Most restaurants operate seven days a week, twelve months out of the year. You may request time off in the special time-off book, or using the system for time-off requests used in your restaurant.

To avoid any misunderstandings in this area, we encourage you to check the weekly rosters carefully and record your shift assignments. You may also be required to initial your rostered shift(s) on the roster.

If you are unable to report for work at your regular scheduled time, you should phone at least one day in advance of your absence if possible, but in no case later than two hours before your scheduled starting time on the day of the absence.

In order to minimise confusion and increase efficiency, shift changes can only be verified by the Restaurant Manager or Rostering Manager. Check with the Restaurant Manager what the policy is for your restaurant.

Punctuality

Being punctual is extremely important. All employees are expected to be in uniform, clocked on and ready for work at their rostered time. Turning up late not only adversely affects restaurant operations, but it places unnecessary and unfair pressures on fellow team members whose work depends on your presence. You may be counselled for punctuality problems.

From time to time, you may be requested to come in to work a shift when you are not scheduled. If you come in, you will be guaranteed the award minimum shift.

Occasionally, you will be asked to continue working past your scheduled clock off time. Staying back is optional and you should not feel forced or pressured to do so. If you continue working, you will be released as soon as possible or at the time you have agreed with the Manager. Alternative transport arrangements may need to be made for you if you agree to stay back. Of course you will be paid for all the time that you work. Please check the amounts carefully each week on your pay slip and report any errors immediately to your Restaurant Manager.

General Rostering Principles

- It is not McDonald's policy to roster employees for two separate shifts in one day.
- You won't be asked to take a break within 1 hour of starting your shift.
- Every crew person will be rostered for an Award minimum shift. (See Award Summary).
- Your rostered time to start should equal your clocking on time, unless other agreed arrangements have been made.
- When you have completed your work you should only then clock off.
- Your pay slip will show the actual clock times, i.e., when you clock on and clock off.
- You will be paid for all hours worked including training sessions, crew meetings and communication sessions.
- You should only use your clock card or number to clock on and off. You should not use another employee's card.
- No junior person (under 17 years) to be rostered to work more than 8 hours per day.
- If you're a student under 17, you won't be asked to work after 11pm on a school night (Sun-Thurs)
- McDonald's has a No Loitering Policy. Basically, this means we ask that if you are rostered for a shift, you are not to be in the crew room for more than 30 minutes either side of your shift. The reasons for this are for your safety, security and the smooth running of the shift. If you are not rostered on, you are only permitted in the restaurant's Customer Areas.

In the event that your roster doesn't conform to these policies, please see your Rostering Manager who will correct the problem. Failure to report for a scheduled shift generally will result in disciplinary action (Refer to the McDonald's Counselling Process.)

Performance Expectations

At McDonald's we attribute our success to our high standards of Quality, Service and Cleanliness. Our customers have come to expect these standards and it is only through the efforts of each and every one of us that we will continue to meet these expectations.

To assist in the uniformity of procedures, McDonald's training materials, together with performance reviews, are used to assist our employees in meeting these standards.

Your Training

- As part of your ongoing development you'll have at least one SOC per month.
- You'll work with a Crew Trainer for the duration of your first shift.
- You'll get at least one Performance Review every 12 months.
- You'll work in safe conditions and will be trained in Workplace Safety.

Your progress at McDonald's will be reviewed on a regular basis. This gives you a chance to see how well you are doing and how you can improve in the areas of teamwork, initiative, McDonald's Standards and Procedures and delivering Customer Delight.

Your performance review will cover these areas:

- Strives to delight customers - Strives to delight every customer. Delivers McDonald's Hospitality (Restaurant Basics) to all customers. Serves customers using the 4 Moments of the Customer Service Cycle. Handles customer feedback and special needs calmly and effectively.
- Takes initiative and ownership - Works quickly and works hard to finish assigned tasks. Completes tasks before being asked by a manager.

Strives to learn and offers solutions to problems.

- Consistently follows standards - Follows procedures, regardless of supervision or sales volume. Helps others maintain high standards and lets manager know when standards are not being met. Follows guidelines for personal appearance and reports to work neat and clean.
- Demonstrates and promotes teamwork - Treats all team members politely and with respect. Helps co-workers and keeps calm when dealing with them. Tells co-workers of changes that may affect service times or quality. Tries to communicate with customers who speak another language.

Your consistent application of McDonald's Standards, Policies and Procedures will be a big determinant in your progression within the organisation.

McDonald's Counselling Process

Naturally, we hope that your time at McDonald's will always be exciting and challenging and that you will be successful in your job. If your performance declines, our goal is to help you improve. The counselling process is designed to accomplish this purpose and you will be given every opportunity to improve (preventing further advice, and avoiding dismissal).

By the time you receive an initial counselling regarding a breach in Restaurant Policy or poor performance, you would usually have been advised verbally (probably on numerous occasions) that your performance is unsatisfactory. If so, this will be noted on the counselling sheet.

When you have a counselling session you may request a third person be present as a witness.

- A manager will explain the problem/issue/breach of policy or poor performance/work standards, and you will be given the opportunity to respond. Your response will be recorded.
- Discussion will take place about what action is to take place to prevent a recurrence.
- You will be advised that further recurrences will mean further written advice, subsequent final written advice and that dismissal could ultimately result.
- If you refuse to sign the counselling sheet, a witness will be requested to verify that the incident has been discussed with you.
- A review date may be set to review actions agreed at the counselling session.
- Instant dismissal without notice on the grounds of gross misconduct, the following principles will apply:
- The manager will investigate the facts in relation to the incident and present them to you.
- You will be allowed to respond to the allegations.
- All discussions including relevant dates, explanation documents and signatories will be documented.
- A 24 hour cooling off period prior to ultimate decision will be used to consider the employee's response/explanation and any mitigating factors.

If you have any questions about your restaurant policies or the counselling process please ask your Restaurant Manager, Licensee or contact the Employee Relations Representative in your region.

Diversity & Inclusion

The Diversity & Inclusion Policy includes Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO), Harassment, Bullying & Discrimination

McDonald's values diversity in the workplace and we promote equal employment opportunity (EEO) to ensure that our employees enjoy a harmonious work environment that is free from harassment, bullying and discrimination. At McDonald's, all employees are entitled to be treated with respect and dignity.

Equal Employment Opportunity

We take positive steps to ensure that job satisfaction and the potential to develop in the workplace are not related to gender, age, race, colour, national origin, religious belief, marital status, sexual preference, pregnancy, family responsibilities or employment status.

At McDonald's, we describe EEO as simply putting "aces in their places". This means that in recruiting, training, developing and identifying employees for advancement; opportunities are available to all, and our decisions are based on individual performance and ability.

Harassment, Bullying & Discrimination

Harassment, bullying and discrimination are against the law and McDonald's policy. It is also contrary to the spirit of diversity and inclusion and will not be tolerated by McDonald's. In determining harassment, bullying or discrimination, it is a person's perception of the unwanted behaviour that is important; not the way that the behaviour was intended to be taken. Preventing harassment, bullying or discrimination is therefore everyone's responsibility.

It is important to note that harassment, bullying or discrimination should not be confused with legitimate feedback, or a reasonable performance management plan, as provided by managers or crew trainers.

Any allegations of harassment, discrimination or bullying will be investigated and could lead to disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment, as well as legal action against those responsible.

What does it all mean?

Harassment is any unwanted behaviour that humiliates, offends or intimidates. Harassment may include jokes about a person's appearance or any other personal matter that causes embarrassment.

Sexual Harassment is any verbal, written or physical behaviour of a sexual nature that is unwelcome and uninvited. Sexual Harassment may include unwelcome physical contact such as touching or kissing, verbal comments such as persistently inviting someone out or questions about a person's private life; and nonverbal actions such as staring or leering in a sexual manner and suggestive letters and drawings, including via email.

Bullying is any ongoing anti-social or unreasonable behaviour that offends, degrades, intimidates or humiliates a person. Bullying may create an environment of fear through acts such as isolation and exclusion from workplace activities, ridicule, insult or sarcasm, or physical violence.

Discrimination occurs when a person is treated less favourably than another person because of their gender, age, race, disability, sexual preference, pregnancy, religious belief or any of the other grounds covered by anti-discrimination legislation.

Discrimination may occur indirectly when a requirement (or rule) that is the same for all employees, has an effect or result that is, or is likely to, disadvantage certain employees.

Investigation of Complaints

If you think you are being harassed or made to feel uncomfortable at work, you have the right to speak out to ensure such behaviour stops.

McDonald's will treat reports and complaints of harassment, bullying and discrimination seriously and will investigate promptly in a sensitive, thorough and confidential manner.

An investigation may involve:

- The manager investigating the facts in relation to the incident
- The manager presenting the allegations and facts obtained to the person/s involved
- The person/s involved being given the chance to respond to the allegations

The discussion and outcome will be documented. A 24 hour cooling off period prior to an ultimate decision may be used to investigate further and/or consider provide a response/ explanation.

Allegations deliberately fabricated or made up will not be tolerated. There may be serious consequences for any person making deliberately false allegations.

What if it happens to me?

If you feel you are being harassed, discriminated against or bullied, you can follow four simple steps.

Step 1 – Discuss it with the person who is making you feel uncomfortable

Let them know their behaviour is unacceptable to you, and ask them to stop. Don't ignore it and hope it'll go away. If you don't feel comfortable doing this, go straight to your Restaurant Manager or Licensee.

Step 2 – Discuss it with your Restaurant Manager or Licensee

If the behaviour does not stop, or you are unable to speak to the person directly, then speak to your Restaurant Manager or Licensee. They will take your concerns seriously, and investigate your allegations.

Step 3 – Contact the People Resources Department

If you feel you need further advice you can contact your regional People Resources Department or write a Personal Action Letter.

Depending on the outcome of the investigation, the consequences could include an apology, counselling, transfer or even termination of employment for the person responsible.

Step 4 – Confidentiality and Honesty

Everyone must maintain confidentiality if they provide information during an investigation. Spreading rumours or gossip will not be tolerated.

Employee Conduct

No Solicitation Policy/No Loitering Policy

Solicitation for funds, membership or individual commitment to outside organisations or distribution of literature for any purpose by outside, non-employee persons is prohibited on restaurant premises.

Solicitation by employees for funds, membership or individual commitment to outside organisations or causes is also prohibited on restaurant premises when the soliciting employee or the employee being solicited is or should be engaged in the performance of job duties. Under no circumstances, can such solicitation take place in an area of the restaurant frequented by customers.

Distribution of literature is prohibited in customer, or crew areas when team members are or should be engaged in the performance of job duties. Restaurant premises must be kept clean and free of litter at all times. Team members who have finished work are requested to leave the premises as soon as possible. Off duty team members are not permitted to distribute literature or to solicit or otherwise interfere with or disturb working team members. Incidents of any of the foregoing should be reported to management immediately.

Non Fraternisation Policy

McDonald's encourages a friendly atmosphere amongst all employees and participation in various restaurant-sponsored activities. However, to avoid claims of favouritism, double standards or harassment, crew and managers in the same restaurant are strongly discouraged from pursuing dates with each other. If your Restaurant Manager or Restaurant Owner becomes aware of any instances of such behaviour they may discuss the situation with you and take necessary action.

Transferring of Stock Policy

Ordering sufficient stock to satisfy demand is an important part of managing a restaurant. Best practice dictates that you will always have enough stock on hand to suit your requirements, and the need to transfer stock between stores should not arise. Transfer of stock presents QSC risks in relation to food safety and OHS risks for the employee involved in travelling for business purposes.

McDonald's recognises though, that occasionally, the need to transfer stock between stores may arise. In these limited circumstances, you must follow the guidelines as set out below:

1. Under no circumstances should Refrigerated or Frozen stock be transferred
2. Under no circumstances should Helium or Gas tanks or containers be transferred
3. Only a Restaurant Manager should be responsible for the collection, transportation or transfer of stock
4. The Restaurant Manager should only leave the store if there is another Store Manager or 1st Assistant on duty who can properly supervise crew in his/her absence
5. If a Restaurant Manager is unable to leave the store due to business requirements, another employee can only be requested to transfer stock where:

- a) they are 18 years of age or over;
- b) they are a licensed driver;
- c) they are driving a car that is registered and insured for business purposes;
- d) they must remain clocked on;
- e) they must take the most direct route to and from the restaurant; and
- f) they have the right to refuse the request.

Alcohol and illegal substances

In order to protect our employees, customers and the public from any harm, please respect our position that the manufacture, sale, distribution, use and/or possession of alcohol or illegal substances on McDonald's property is strictly prohibited.

Breach of this policy may result in disciplinary action up to, and including, termination of employment.

This policy extends to employees who are under the influence of alcohol or illegal substances.

Off-the-job use of alcohol or illegal drugs which adversely affects an employee's work performance; jeopardises the safety of employees, customers and business equipment, or adversely affects the public trust in the McDonald's brand, may also be cause for disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Blogging Policy

As an employee of McDonald's, we ask that you act in good faith towards McDonald's, both inside and outside of the workplace.

Employees should not use any electronic means (including the Internet or email) to undermine the goodwill, reputation, development and/or operation of McDonald's and our employees. This extends to use of facilities off the premises, or while you are not at work.

Unacceptable conduct includes identifying McDonald's through words or images in a negative, derogatory or defamatory manner. This would include posting about McDonald's in a public forum such as a blog or other public website, or via the circulation of emails.

Breach of this policy may be cause for disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

General Policies in the Restaurant

Telephone

The telephone is for business purposes; however, if you need to make a personal call, please ask a member of the Management Team on duty. Keep your family informed of your restaurant telephone number. Mobile phones should not be switched or carried with you on your shift.

Employee Parking

Because of limited customer parking in most restaurants, employees should park in the areas designated by your Management Team.

Video surveillance

It may be the case that your restaurant has continual and ongoing video surveillance in place. If so, your actions at work are recorded by the surveillance system. This footage may be reviewed by Management at any time and used as evidence.

If you have any questions regarding video surveillance in your restaurant, speak to a member of the management team.

Valuables

We advise you not to bring valuables to work as their safety cannot be guaranteed. McDonald's does not take any responsibility for items that go missing.

Your restaurant may operate a "lock box" system where you can place any valuables if needed – speak to your Restaurant Manager to find out if your restaurant has one of these.

Record-keeping

To keep our records up-to-date, please notify a member of the management team at once whenever there is a change to your:

- Telephone number
- Address
- Person to notify in case of accident or illness

Injury Management

All employees are entitled to claim Workers' Compensation if they suffer a work-related injury or illness. If you suffer a work related injury or illness you must immediately inform a member of your restaurant's management team. They will arrange first aid and if required, medical attention. The manager will document the injury on an Incident/ Visit Report Form. If you seek medical attention you are required to provide a prescribed Workers' Compensation Medical Certificate from your doctor.

An early return to work by an injured/ ill worker is a normal practice and expectation of all employees. If you are unable to return to your normal duties, a Return to Work Plan will be prepared by your restaurant's Rehabilitation Coordinator in consultation with you, your treating doctor and Restaurant Manager. Every effort will be made by your Rehabilitation Coordinator to provide you with suitable/alternate duties during your recovery. If required, Workers' Compensation forms are available from your Restaurant Manager or Licensee.

Delighting our Customers

QSC & V

Delighting our customers is about ensuring we deliver outstanding QSC&V

Quality:

McDonald's reputation for quality is internationally known. It is especially unique because the highest quality standards are maintained at reasonable prices. We use the finest available products and carefully developed product formulas. But all of this can be lost without your help. Always check the products you prepare or serve. If they aren't right, don't serve them and tell your Manager.

Service:

Quality and cleanliness are wasted without fast, accurate, friendly and courteous service. A smile along with the best food in the world will always bring our customers back. And remember - the customer is the most important single factor in our business.

Cleanliness:

Cleanliness is like a magnet drawing customers to McDonald's. Our restaurants must be spotless at all times, both inside and out. Cleanliness is critical to serving safe food. Only through the best efforts of everyone will that happen. All of us must be neat in our appearance, and keep our work areas clean. We stress clean as you go. It's easier and always keeps us at our best. Remember that the best food and service are wasted if the restaurant isn't clean.

Value:

The experience that customers have while in the restaurant, affects whether or not they believe they are getting their money's worth. There can be a difference between what you define as a great service experience and what the customer defines as a great service experience - it is about their perception of service, not ours.

Heart Foundation Tick

The Heart Foundation is an independent Australia-wide, non-government, not for profit organisation. The purpose of the Heart foundation is to improve the health of Australians and to reduce disability and death from heart attacks, stroke and blood vessel disease. The Heart Foundations' Tick of Approval is a guide to help people make healthier food choices in a quick and easy way.

McDonald's has a number of Tick meals available, all of which have been approved through the Heart Foundation's Tick program. There are specific requirements which must be met before you are able to prepare or serve Tick meals, these will be covered off by your Crew Trainer before you start work

Food Sensitivities/Allergies

A small percentage of our customers may have a reaction to common food ingredients found in our products including gluten, milk, soy, egg, fish and seafood, nuts, peanuts and sulphites. These customers may request information about our menu items. Refer any enquiries to the shift manager to ensure customers access the correct information. Information is also available on the McDonald's website (www.mcdonalds.com.au).

Our

Working in the Restaurants

Communication

Part of clear communication is to speak clearly, slowly and loudly enough to be understood over the noise of the restaurant. And remember to say “please” and “thank you” to your fellow team members when you ask for things while you’re working.

Another important part of communication is listening carefully to what others say and ask for. When someone makes a request, it’s often a good idea to repeat what you heard the person say, just to be sure. Then acknowledge the request.

Recognise the good work of others. When somebody helps you out or does something that makes your workday a little bit easier, remember to say thanks. It’s surprising how something so small can make a person feel appreciated.

Congratulate others. When people do a good job, congratulate them. Big or small, what you do contributes to the success of the restaurant and it feels great when others notice your good work.

Teamwork

Working at McDonald’s means being a team player

A team is a group of people working together to accomplish one thing. Just as a sports team focuses on winning a championship, teams at McDonald's focus on providing good food to our customers, fast. McDonald's is filled with different types of teams: the service team, grill team, and crew training team, just to name a few. When you work at McDonald's, you'll be a part of many of these teams.

Our

How do we work as a team?

Be on time

Arriving to work on time is very important. If you're late, your manager must reshuffle the team to cover your responsibilities.

Follow procedures

Prepare food following proper procedures. Following procedures keeps the production line moving and avoids delay, confusion and wasted food. It also helps ensure food safety and quality.

Take care of your station

During the day, keep your work area as clean as possible. Slow periods give you a chance to catch up—maintain your station, restock supplies and generally clean up. It is your responsibility to communicate to your manager when you are running low on products or when you know something that could affect the next shift.

Help other stations

Over the course of the day, you will experience not only slow periods, but also very busy periods. During these rush times, it's important for everyone to pull together and lend a hand.

When possible, look for opportunities where you can help people at other stations. You might get 10:1 meat for a grill person who's running low, get fries out of the freezer for the fry station or help to clean up a spill that happened nearby. Be sure to check with your manager first before leaving your station.

Support team members

Support team members who may be having problems, like new team members who are just getting the hang of things.

At the end of your shift

At the end of your shift, make sure you've cleaned and prepared your station properly, so it's ready for the next person and looks just like you'd want it to be at the start of your shift.

Speak up!

Sometimes you might see a problem that a manager hasn't seen. If you see the same problem occurring time and time again, tell your manager about it and offer some possible solutions if you have them.

Ask for help

Even when you're working your hardest, you may find yourself falling behind customer demand. When this happens, don't be afraid to ask someone nearby for help.

Respecting Diversity

Working at McDonald's means working in a socially and culturally diverse environment

Like our customers, people who work for McDonald's come from all sorts of backgrounds and can have very different ways of seeing the world—diversity is one of our greatest strengths. Your team members might be different from you in a lot of ways.

Some differences are cultural: race, religion, personal beliefs, language, ways of speaking and dressing.

Some have more to do with personality: loud and boisterous, quiet and shy, friendly and outgoing

Some may have to do with special needs: visual or hearing impairment, language or learning difficulties or physical disability.

Everyone, including you, deserves to be treated with respect, kindness and understanding, no matter what the differences are.

How do I respect diversity?

- Value customers and team members from different social and cultural groups and treat them with respect and sensitivity.
- Take into consideration cultural differences when you are communicating (verbal and non verbal).
- Communicate with gestures or simple words where language barriers exist or obtain assistance from a team member.
- Consider possible social and cultural differences when difficulties or misunderstandings occur and make an effort to resolve the misunderstanding, taking into account these cultural differences.
- Refer any issues or problems to your Restaurant Manager for follow-up.

Embracing Change

At McDonald's, change is a part of life, because we're constantly trying to improve what we offer to our customers. This means that things, such as our equipment, menu items and procedures may change. Teamwork is especially important at times like these. Working together ensures that things go smoothly. During the day, you'll experience minor changes, such as shifts from quiet to busy periods. Over longer periods of time, you'll see changes like new advertising campaigns and promotions around the restaurant. It's easy to adapt to these changes.

Our
Customers

Communication

We believe it is important to keep the 'lines of communication' open between crew and McDonald's. You'll be told in good time about any new or changed operational procedures & promotions. We have several formal and informal ways to ensure that this can happen.

Open Door Policy

You can speak with any of your management team if you have any questions about your restaurant or working conditions.

If your questions have not been answered, you can go to the next level and request the involvement of the Licensee or your restaurant's Operations Consultant (Area Manager).

Personal Action Letter (PAL)

Another way you can communicate is via a PAL to raise your queries and concerns and seek assistance in resolving them. If you prefer, you can choose to remain anonymous when writing a PAL.

In the Crew Room you will find a wall display with a supply of form letters and envelopes, pre-addressed to be sent to the PAL Coordinator. Simply fill one out and post.

If you have provided your name/contact details the PAL Coordinator will contact you by phone or letter to help address your queries or concerns.

Notice Boards

Notice Boards are located in your restaurant. These boards are used to post announcements or notices regarding safety, working conditions and other matters relating to your employment. Do not post or alter any of the notices on the notice board. You should make it a practice to look at the notice board regularly.

Communication (Rap) Sessions

These are informal talks between a small group of crew and the management of your restaurant. This is management's chance to get suggestions from you on a wide variety of subjects. These suggestions are then considered as to how they can help improve your restaurant. Rap sessions are held every few months. Your input is very important to us.

Crew Meetings

Crew meetings are held at least twice a year to inform you about new things in your restaurant. Your management team may also use these meetings to address issues, policies, health and safety updates or procedures. Basically, the crew meeting is your management team's chance to tell you about many of the interesting things going on in your restaurant. If you haven't been to one yet, ask your management team when the next one is scheduled.

Crew Opinion Surveys

Crew opinion surveys are conducted at least annually. The purpose of asking you to complete this survey is to seek your help in making improvements. The information you pass on will be totally anonymous. We will be looking at storewide results only.

Your Own Ideas

While doing your work, you may come up with ideas, better ways of doing things or constructive criticism. We welcome criticism and suggestions; they are very important to our success and our future. Please relay your suggestions to your Management Team, Licensee or Restaurant's Operations Consultant.

WRAPT Magazine

This is a monthly magazine published by McDonald's. It contains general information about McDonald's that affects you, the crew. You are welcome to submit articles, letters or pictures to be considered for publication. You can usually find a copy of the magazine in your crew room.

Email any submissions to wrapt@ppr.com.au

For further information, contact your Regional People Resources Department.

McDonald's Assistance Programme (MAP)

MAP is a professional and confidential counselling service for all McDonald's Australia Limited full-time and part-time employees. The programme provides counselling to help full-time and part-time employees solve personal problems, which may affect work or home life. A brochure outlining the programme is available from your Restaurant Manager or your Regional People Resources Department.

Employee Database

Also available to facilitate your continuing career within McDonald's is our Employee Database. The purpose of the database is to provide us with an ongoing record of young people interested in pursuing a Corporate career with McDonald's, who have both McDonald's experience and who are currently undertaking or have completed tertiary training (e.g., University or TAFE).

If you would like your details to be placed on our Employee Database, please send your resume to The National People Resources Department at Head Office in Sydney (P.O. Box 392, Pennant Hills, NSW, 2120).

One Card

Working at McDonald's has a fantastic benefit – the One Card. The One Card is a privilege card exclusively for McDonald's employees. It gives all employees discounts at McDonald's and a number of national retailers. See the flyer attached to your card for full details. So while some employers give a discount on their own products, McDonald's has gone a lot further to provide offers from other retailers where employees like to shop.

Crew Scholarship Programme

The McDonald's Crew Scholarship fund consists of around 20 scholarship awards, presented either quarterly or annually depending on your state, to crew members in Australia who have shown outstanding ability both at school and in their jobs at McDonald's. The scholarship is unique in that you do not necessarily have to be the top of your class or a star athlete to win the award. Instead, it allows McDonald's to give something back to their employees for showing dedication and working hard at McDonald's, while remaining in school.

Please review the following criteria to see if you may be eligible:

- Entering into or continued enrolment at an accredited institution of higher learning (eg., High School, College, University or Trade School).
- Employed in a McDonald's restaurant with a minimum of 300 hours over a 12 month period, and continuing employment as at the date of your application.
- Evaluation of "Significant" or better work rating at your McDonald's restaurant.

If you meet the above criteria, please ask your manager for a scholarship application. The deadlines for applications vary between states. Nominations will be submitted to a selection committee made up of McDonald's corporate personnel and high profile community representatives. Winners will be announced one month later.

For further information, contact your Regional People Resources Department.

If you start to feel ill, tell your manager. Good health is important throughout your shift. You are at a higher risk for transferring bacteria to food or others.

Don't touch or prepare food if you have cuts or sores on your hands. Open cuts or sores can easily become infected with bacteria, which might then be transferred to food.

Adhesive strips

Any open cut, infected wounds or sores on hands or fingers must be covered with a McDonald's approved Blue Adhesive Strip and a glove. When handling straws ensure fingers are placed in the centre of the straws and not at the ends.

Keep fingernails trimmed. Long nails are difficult to keep clean with normal hand washing and can hold bacteria between the nail and the skin. This could be transferred to food when you touch it.

Keep long hair pulled up and restrained.

Long hair that hangs loosely has the potential of getting into food during preparation.

Hand Washing

The first step when beginning work is washing your hands for 20 seconds with McD Antimicrobial Handwash (McD AMH). Using this soap helps remove bacteria and viruses that may be on your hands.

If your hands become contaminated with harmful bacteria or viruses, you can pass the contamination on to any surface or food you touch. Safe food handling begins with clean hands.

Wash your hands at least once every hour.

1. Wet your hands with warm water.
2. Dispense 1 portion of MCD AMH into your palm.
3. Lather to the middle of your forearm and really scrub. Use your fingertips as 'bristles'. This helps to clean under your fingernails.
4. After 20 seconds rinse thoroughly.
5. Use paper towel or the hot air drier to dry your hands thoroughly.

Proper and frequent hand washing is the key activity in promoting good food handling procedures and serving safe food.

'Use thru' date

Food products that are processed by a nationally approved supplier have a "use thru", "best before" or "use by" date on the packaging. This food can only be used until midnight of the date of the packaging.

It shows the day, month and year. Knowing and observing product holding times, stock rotation & refrigeration temperatures is the key. All food at McDonald's has a holding time including condiments at the dress table, so always check with your shift manager for the proper amounts of these condiments to stock.

At the end of the holding time, food must be discarded and the containers washed and rinsed, sanitised and air dried before being refilled with fresh product.

Avoid mixing fresh product with product that's already stocked. Mixing could lead to cross contamination.

Rotation and Storage

Follow the rule of First in, First out when storing, rotating and using food products. In other words, use items in the same order in which they were put into storage.

Never turn off refrigeration units when receiving a delivery.

Refrigerated and frozen product should be moved to the proper storage environment immediately. Rotate products in the coolers and freezers before receiving the delivery. Product starts to deteriorate as soon as it is exposed to warm temperatures.

The freezer temperature should be -18° C to -23°C and this includes grill side freezers and filet freezer.

All refrigerated areas should be 1°C to 4° C. These include the walk-in refrigerator, and shake and sundae mix reservoirs. If you notice that a temperature is out of the range, notify your shift manager immediately.

Physical contamination

Food can become unsafe through physical contamination, or by foreign objects, which can cause injury if they accidentally get into food. One example is metal shavings that may get into the food from spatulas and grill scrapers that have not been sharpened correctly.

Follow the Miscellaneous Tasks OPS to make sure you are avoiding this type of contamination.

Avoid creating situations where contamination might occur. For example, cover food and packaging that comes into contact with food properly before storing, keep food cases off the floor, and, if you are working grill, do not remove carton flaps from meat cases when storing them in the grill side freezer.

Chemical contamination

Food can become unsafe to eat through chemical contamination. By not properly using chemicals in the restaurant, or by improper storage of chemicals, you could cause food to become contaminated.

Don't take shortcuts!

- Store food at least 15cms off the floor.
- Follow instructions on cleaning products.
- Keep chemicals in their designated storage areas, never around food storage areas.
- Keep chemicals in properly labelled containers.

As you gain experience, your trainer will teach you more about handling chemicals and proper cleaning procedures for your particular station.

Disposable gloves

Disposable, loose-fitting polythene gloves must be worn by all McDonald's employees handling ready-to-eat food in restaurants in all Australian States and Territories.

In addition, a 'blue glove' procedure has been developed and implemented for the handling of raw 10:1, 4:1, 3:1 Angus, sausage, raw uncoated chicken and eggs. Blue gloves are used to minimise the potential for cross-contamination from raw to ready-to-eat foods meat. Always check the promotional folder or ask your shift manager if promotional products require blue gloves.

Gloves merely form a barrier between the hands and the surfaces they are touching. Gloves do not prevent cross contamination if used incorrectly. Disposable gloves offer the best protection against human contamination when used appropriately for single functions. However, gloves can be a source of contamination when used during multiple functions.

When gloves are worn, it is important to remember that they have the same chance as hands of becoming unsanitary when a person continues to work at a particular station. It is imperative that consideration is given to all food and packaging products as well as surfaces in contact with a gloved hand.

Putting gloves on

When putting on gloves, you should only handle the glove from the top (wrist area) and the inside of the gloves. The sections that primarily come in contact with the food should not be handled as this can contribute to cross contamination.

Changing gloves

Gloves must be changed on a regular basis. At a minimum:

1. Change every hour;
2. Change when you move between different functions, such as sweeping floors or doing stock up or rotating stations;
3. If gloves are soiled or damaged in any way, such as if they have holes or tears;
4. After using or cleaning the restrooms;
5. As often as necessary to maintain hygienic food handling.

Changing gloves

Wear a blue glove at the grill when

- You remove a raw product (10:1, 4:1, 3:1 Angus, sausage or raw uncoated chicken patties) from the grill side freezer and place them on the grill.
- You crack and drop shelled eggs into the cooking ring
- You handle the following raw products for any reason:
 - 10:1
 - 4:1
 - 3:1 Angus
 - raw uncoated chicken
 - sausage
 - eggs

You must remove blue gloves before:

- Touching trays or cooking utensils
- Removing cooked products from the grill
- Transferring cooked products to the UHC
- Preparing UHC trays

Remove the blue glove by grabbing the glove(s) at the wrist and then tear the glove off so that it turns inside out.

Equipment

All equipment that comes in contact with food, must be washed, rinsed and sanitised and air dried at least once a day. Some equipment must be washed, rinsed & sanitized every 2hrs or every 4hrs.

3 Sink Method

Fill the 1st compartment (wash) of the 3 compartment sink in the wash up area to the fill line, with a solution of hot water and one sachet of McD All Purpose Concentrate.

Leave the middle compartment empty for spray rinsing. Fill the 3rd compartment (sanitise) to the fill line with lukewarm water and then add the packet of McD SinkPak. Lukewarm means the water is tolerable enough to put your hand into (21°C to 32°C).

Do not use hot water as it weakens the chlorine in the Sanitiser, or cold water as it slows down the sanitising action.

Hand mix the solution to make sure all the Sanitiser is dissolved.

Do NOT use cloths for drying because they might carry bacteria.

Do NOT place equipment in the walk-in cooler for air-drying. It's too moist in there for them to get really dry.

Clean as you go (CAYG)

Our customers expect a clean environment—even if they cannot see all areas of our restaurant!

What does clean mean?

Clean means there is no visible debris on counter or equipment surfaces. No crumbs, shredded lettuce, onions, tomato slices, grease, etc. There is also no debris on the floor. No fries, napkins, boxes, fry bags, or grill slips.

Clean equipment prevents bacteria from growing and then possibly being passed on to other areas or to the food.

What does sanitary mean?

Sanitary means free of harmful levels of contamination, such as disease-causing bacteria. That's why sanitiser is used in cloth buckets to help sanitise surfaces, in the waste-not drums used to fill spray bottles and in the third compartment of the back sink to sanitise utensils and equipment after washing them. Sanitiser solution kills bacteria.

Sanitary surfaces

Clean surfaces with McD APC solution at least once per day. Continue to wipe surfaces throughout the day with clean sanitised towels to help keep the surfaces free of harmful bacteria.

Prevent transfer

By sanitising surfaces, you prevent bacteria from being transferred from one place to another.

Use a spray bottle with McD sanitiser and a sanitised cloth to keep area clean at all times. Spray McD Sanitiser onto cloth. Do not spray directly onto areas that may cause contact with food products (ice bin, production bin, etc.) as this could increase the risk for overspray onto food products.

In food preparation areas, sanitised cloths can only be used for one cleaning activity and then must be placed in the soiled towel bucket.

Stop bacteria

The transfer of bacteria, or cross-contamination, is reduced when surfaces are wiped down with sanitised cloths.

Reach deep

When you reach into the clean-cloth bucket, get your hands all the way down into the solution. You can kill bacteria that may be on your hands in between hand washings.

Refresh often

Don't use the same cloth for your entire shift! Exchange it for a new one at least every 15 minutes. If you are cleaning up big spills or cleaning your whole work area, exchange cloths more often. When a cloth gets soiled, put it in the soiled cloth bucket.

Keep it strong

The sanitizer will not hold up for a long period of time once the cloth is out of the solution and used. Also, it will not be effective in killing bacteria if the cloth is heavily soiled. If the sanitizer solution in the clean cloth bucket looks dirty, replace it with clean solution.

Floors

Sweep and mop as appropriate. Begin by sweeping up debris. Sweep in one direction.

Don't push debris around under tables and chairs! Pull it all toward a single location, and use the dust pan to pick it up.

Fill a clean mop bucket with McD FloorCare solution from the portion control dispenser. Use hot water.

Mops & Mop Bucket

Green Mop Bucket & Green Mop - ONLY to be used in food preparation areas.

Red Mop Bucket and Red Mop - all other areas

Mop a 3 metre x 3 metre area in a figure 8 pattern.

Flip the mop over after each figure 8.

Return mop to bucket to refresh with McD FloorCare Solution.

Always place a Wet Floor sign around the perimeter of the area being mopped.

Dry Wipe Procedures

All food scraps and solids should be placed in a solid waste bin and not down the sink or floor waste.

When cleaning grease, oil or milk/milk products from equipment or surfaces, first wipe off with paper towel. For large spills use Kay indoor/outdoor absorbent. Throw paper towel in a solid waste container then finish cleaning with a cloth or mop as required.

Keep lifting simple and painless

Refer to your restaurant's Safe Lifting and Carrying Poster

1. Kay Chemical Flipchart posted in the wash-up room or kitchen area. This chart provides an at a glance reference to products and their correct use.
2. Kay Chemical First Aid Instructions Chart posted in the kitchen area.
3. The Material Safety Data Sheet (MSDS) Register available on AccessMcD. This register contains detailed information about all McDonald's approved cleaning chemicals such as precautions for use, first aid procedures, storage, handling and risk assessments.

Preventing falls

Keep the floor clean and dry.

Mop up spills right away. Use a damp mop (not a wet one). Put the wet floor sign out immediately on noticing/being told about the spill to alert customers and employees to the hazard.

Whenever you are mopping or deck scrubbing floors, the wet floor sign must be displayed.

Shiny floors are either wet or greasy and could be slippery.

Always empty soiled mop buckets into the washroom or designated FLOOR drain. Mop buckets should be filled using the wash up room WALL tap, not the back sink taps.

Clean up food - clean up any dropped food immediately.

Clean your shoes - wear shoes with good grip and keep the soles of your shoes clean.

Hazardous Substances

Use chemicals carefully.

☒ Read the label

Though most chemicals in your restaurant are no stronger than household cleaners, some require caution when you use them. Always read and follow directions on the label.

☒ Store chemicals correctly

☒ Always use the right chemicals for the job to ensure proper cleaning.

Refer to the Kay Chemical Flipchart

There are three main sources of information about McDonald's approved cleaning chemicals available in the restaurant. These are:

Syringes and Body Fluids

If you find a syringe do not touch it!

If possible, do not leave the syringe unattended. Advise the Shift Manager immediately!

It is the responsibility of trained management or maintenance personnel to safely dispose of any syringes found on the restaurant premises.

☑ Do not pick waste by hand or foot or pick up by hand. Use the litter pick up tool and trash masher at all times.

☑ If there has been a needle stick injury, notify the manager as soon as possible & explain what happened. The Manager will apply first aid by encouraging the wound to bleed, washing away the blood with McD AMH and warm water, applying an antiseptic and a dressing over the wound.

This procedure can be found in the Restaurant Emergency Procedures Flipchart and the Restaurant Operations Standards.

To clean up body fluids (vomit, blood or urine):

- ☑ Put on disposable gloves and apron.
- ☑ Wipe up substance with paper towel and place soiled paper towel into a garbage bag. Tie the garbage bag and dispose of it in the dumpster.
- ☑ Mop hard surfaces with cold water and McD FloorCare. Rinse the mop then mop over with a solution of McD Sanitizer.
- ☑ Rinse mop in the sanitiser solution and hang to air dry.
- ☑ Wash apron with McD APC then sanitise.

☑ Place disposable gloves in a plastic bag and dispose of into a rubbish bin.

This procedure can be found in the Restaurant Operations Standards.

☑ If syringes or sharp objects are discovered whilst performing a Litter Patrol in the area surrounding the restaurant, do not touch them. Inform the Shift Manager on your return to the restaurant and they will contact the Local Council.

Keep your eyes open

Be alert for situations that might lead to a fire, such as gas odours or frayed electrical cords and let your manager know.

Only trained, authorised personnel may enter a space in the restaurant identified with a 'Confined Space' warning sign. Confined spaces are spaces that may present a safety risk since they are not intended primarily as a place of work, may have restricted means of entry and exit, and may not have sufficient air quality to sustain life (eg. exhaust ducting, basement sumps).

Using Electrical Equipment

Before using any piece of electrical equipment, it is important to inspect all readily visible parts. For example, the power lead must be smooth & free of cuts or any type of damage; all operating switches must be in good working condition. If a piece of equipment is faulty, do not use it, alert a Manager and record it in the Hazard Log.

Electrical Isolation

Before moving or cleaning any piece of electrical equipment, make sure it is isolated to prevent electric shock. Follow the Electrical Isolation Procedure found in the rear of this Policies & Procedures Folder and the Electrical procedures flipchart.

Keep areas around electrical panels clear of rubbish and other obstructions. In case of a fire, you may need to get to the circuit breaker quickly. Objects in your way could make you lose valuable time in an emergency.

Hazard Control

How do we control hazards in the restaurant?

- Maintain all equipment in good order - daily cleaning & Planned Maintenance Cards
- Follow all procedures - OPS; STC & SOC
- Follow all training instructions (CDP)
- Never try to perform work you haven't been trained to do.
- Wear all required PPE.

Some jobs require safety equipment for your protection

such as a mask, an apron and gloves when changing fryer oil or a freezer jacket and gloves when working in the freezer during a stock delivery. Always wear PPE when required.

Always wear comfortable, safe shoes with good traction when working in the restaurant. Don't wear shoes with:

- Leather or slippery soles
- High heels
- Open toes
- Open backs

Remember to regularly clean the bottom of your shoes of any grease and dirt.

Outdoor Litter Patrol Vest

Anyone completing a Litter Patrol is required to wear a safety vest. The vests have yellow reflective tape around the middle so that anyone completing a litter patrol can be easily seen.

Always wear disposable gloves, use the Litter Pickup Tool and follow your restaurant's Litter Patrol Plan when conducting a Litter Patrol. The Plan can be found in the Environment Section of the Policies & Procedures Folder.

If you're not trained to complete an outdoor litter patrol you must not perform this task unsupervised.

Risk Assessment

McDonald's has a number of tools available to assess the level of risk. These tools, including the Hazard Log and Hazard Rating Table, can be found in your restaurants Restaurant Essential Workbook or the Restaurant Operations Standards.

Hazard Control

- Follow all procedures – OPSs & SOC.
- Follow all training instructions.
- Maintain all equipment in good order – daily cleaning and Planned Maintenance Cards.
- Never try to perform work you haven't been trained to do.
- Wear all required Personal Protective Equipment (PPE).
- Report all hazards.

To use the Hazard Rating Table:

- Determine the most likely damage that would occur if someone was exposed to the hazard.
- Decide the likelihood that the damage would happen if exposure to the hazard occurred. Ask yourself these questions:
 - How often are people near the hazard?
 - How many people are exposed to the hazard?
 - Has this hazard already caused any problems?
 - How easily could someone be hurt?
 - How often does this hazard cause a problem in other workplaces like yours?

3. Rate the hazard by selecting the corresponding number in the table and write on the Hazard Log Form.

Incident

An incident is any event that resulted in or could have resulted in an injury or illness to an employee, contractor, visitor or customer at McDonald's.

For further information on using the "Incident Visit Report Form", refer to the Green Section of your REW "Rationale Instructions"

- Managing risk by continually monitoring, reviewing, investigating and improving our standards and procedures.
- Establishing measurable objectives and targets.

Safety is an attitude you bring to work with you every day. Everybody who works at McDonald's has an important role to play.

Employee Responsibilities

All employees must:

- ☒ Assist managers in implementing this policy.
- ☒ Use the Hazard Log to identify and assess hazards.
- ☒ Report all work-related near misses, injuries and illnesses.

Keep lifting simple and painless

Refer to your restaurant's Safe Lifting and Carrying Poster

1. Kay Chemical Flipchart posted in the wash-up room or kitchen area. This chart provides an at a glance reference to products and their correct use.
2. Kay Chemical First Aid Instructions Chart posted in the kitchen area.
3. The Material Safety Data Sheet (MSDS) Register available on AccessMcD. This register contains detailed information about all McDonald's approved cleaning chemicals such as precautions for use, first aid procedures, storage, handling and risk assessments.

Preventing falls

Keep the floor clean and dry.

Mop up spills right away. Use a damp mop (not a wet one). Put the wet floor sign out immediately on noticing/being told about the spill to alert customers and employees to the hazard.

Whenever you are mopping or deck scrubbing floors, the wet floor sign must be displayed.

Shiny floors are either wet or greasy and could be slippery.

Always empty soiled mop buckets into the washroom or designated FLOOR drain. Mop buckets should be filled using the wash up room WALL tap, not the back sink taps.

Clean up food - clean up any dropped food immediately.

Clean your shoes - wear shoes with good grip and keep the soles of your shoes clean.

Hazardous Substances

Use chemicals carefully.

☒ Read the label

Though most chemicals in your restaurant are no stronger than household cleaners, some require caution when you use them. Always read and follow directions on the label.

☒ Store chemicals correctly

☒ Always use the right chemicals for the job to ensure proper cleaning.

Refer to the Kay Chemical Flipchart

There are three main sources of information about McDonald's approved cleaning chemicals available in the restaurant. These are:

Syringes and Body Fluids

If you find a syringe do not touch it!

If possible, do not leave the syringe unattended. Advise the Shift Manager immediately!

It is the responsibility of trained management or maintenance personnel to safely dispose of any syringes found on the restaurant premises.

☑ Do not pick waste by hand or foot or pick up by hand. Use the litter pick up tool and trash masher at all times.

☑ If there has been a needle stick injury, notify the manager as soon as possible & explain what happened. The Manager will apply first aid by encouraging the wound to bleed, washing away the blood with McD AMH and warm water, applying an antiseptic and a dressing over the wound.

This procedure can be found in the Restaurant Emergency Procedures Flipchart and the Restaurant Operations Standards.

To clean up body fluids (vomit, blood or urine):

- ☑ Put on disposable gloves and apron.
- ☑ Wipe up substance with paper towel and place soiled paper towel into a garbage bag. Tie the garbage bag and dispose of it in the dumpster.
- ☑ Mop hard surfaces with cold water and McD FloorCare. Rinse the mop then mop over with a solution of McD Sanitizer.
- ☑ Rinse mop in the sanitiser solution and hang to air dry.
- ☑ Wash apron with McD APC then sanitise.

☑ Place disposable gloves in a plastic bag and dispose of into a rubbish bin.

This procedure can be found in the Restaurant Operations Standards.

☑ If syringes or sharp objects are discovered whilst performing a Litter Patrol in the area surrounding the restaurant, do not touch them. Inform the Shift Manager on your return to the restaurant and they will contact the Local Council.

Keep your eyes open

Be alert for situations that might lead to a fire, such as gas odours or frayed electrical cords and let your manager know.

Only trained, authorised personnel may enter a space in the restaurant identified with a 'Confined Space'

warning sign. Confined spaces are spaces that may present a safety risk since they are not intended primarily as a place of work, may have restricted means of entry and exit, and may not have sufficient air quality to sustain life (eg. exhaust ducting, basement sumps).

Using Electrical Equipment

Before using any piece of electrical equipment, it is important to inspect all readily visible parts. For example, the power lead must be smooth & free of cuts or any type of damage; all operating switches must be in good working condition. If a piece of equipment is faulty, do not use it, alert a Manager and record it in the Hazard Log.

Electrical Isolation

Before moving or cleaning any piece of electrical equipment, make sure it is isolated to prevent electric shock. Follow the Electrical Isolation Procedure found in the rear of this Policies & Procedures Folder and the Electrical procedures flipchart.

Keep areas around electrical panels clear of rubbish and other obstructions. In case of a fire, you may need to get to the circuit breaker quickly. Objects in your way could make you lose valuable time in an emergency.

Hazard Control

How do we control hazards in the restaurant?

- Maintain all equipment in good order - daily cleaning & Planned Maintenance Cards
- Follow all procedures - OPS; STC & SOC
- Follow all training instructions (CDP)
- Never try to perform work you haven't been trained to do.
- Wear all required PPE.

Some jobs require safety equipment for your protection

such as a mask, an apron and gloves when changing fryer oil or a freezer jacket and gloves when working in the freezer during a stock delivery. Always wear PPE when required.

Always wear comfortable, safe shoes with good traction when working in the restaurant. Don't wear shoes with:

- Leather or slippery soles
- High heels
- Open toes
- Open backs

Remember to regularly clean the bottom of your shoes of any grease and dirt.

Outdoor Litter Patrol Vest

Anyone completing a Litter Patrol is required to wear a safety vest. The vests have yellow reflective tape around the middle so that anyone completing a litter patrol can be easily seen.

Always wear disposable gloves, use the Litter Pickup Tool and follow your restaurant's Litter Patrol Plan when conducting a Litter Patrol. The Plan can be found in the Environment Section of the Policies & Procedures Folder.

If you're not trained to complete an outdoor litter patrol you must not perform this task unsupervised.

Risk Assessment

McDonald's has a number of tools available to assess the level of risk. These tools, including the Hazard Log and Hazard Rating Table, can be found in your restaurants Restaurant Essential Workbook or the Restaurant Operations Standards.

Hazard Control

- Follow all procedures – OPSs & SOC.
- Follow all training instructions.
- Maintain all equipment in good order – daily cleaning and Planned Maintenance Cards.
- Never try to perform work you haven't been trained to do.
- Wear all required Personal Protective Equipment (PPE).
- Report all hazards.

How to complete the Hazard Log (pictured right)

1. DATE

This is the current date.

2. NAME & SIGNATURE

This is the name & signature of the person reporting the hazard.

3. LOCATION OF HAZARD

This is the physical location of the hazard. For example, next to the ice machine.

4. FULL DESCRIPTION OF HAZARD

For example, water leaking on to the floor from a pipe connection.

5. DID THE HAZARD RESULT IN AN INCIDENT?

This prompts the employee to use the Incident/Visit Report if they are injured.

6. HOW WAS THE HAZARD IDENTIFIED?

This allows the Restaurant Manager to know how hazards are identified in the restaurant.

7. HAZARD RATING (use the hazard rating table).

8. INITIAL MANAGEMENT OF HAZARD

Record what you have done to manage the hazard; for example, cleaning up an oil spill.

9. REPORTED TO (SHIFT MANAGER)

Write the name of the person to whom you reported the hazard. This person should be your Shift Manager. Tear out the white copy and give it to the Shift Manager.

To use the Hazard Rating Table:

- Determine the most likely damage that would occur if someone was exposed to the hazard.
- Decide the likelihood that the damage would happen if exposure to the hazard occurred. Ask yourself these questions:
 - How often are people near the hazard?
 - How many people are exposed to the hazard?
 - Has this hazard already caused any problems?
 - How easily could someone be hurt?
 - How often does this hazard cause a problem in other workplaces like yours?

- Rate the hazard by selecting the corresponding number in the table and write on the Hazard Log Form.

HAZARD RATING TABLE

death or permanent disability	1	1	2	3

Incident

An incident is any event that resulted in or could have resulted in an injury or illness to an employee, contractor, visitor or customer at McDonald's.

Incident Report

While we do all we can to minimise hazards, sometimes incidents do occur. If an incident does happen, immediately report it to the Shift Manager who will record it on the Incident/Visit Report Form in the Restaurant Essentials Workbook. For further information on using the "Incident Visit Report Form", refer to the Green Section of your REW "Rationale Instructions"

Critical Incident

A critical incident is any event that resulted, or could have resulted, in serious injury or illness. Critical incidents include fire, robbery, fall from height, needle stick injury or electric shock.

Workplace Safety Policy

- Consulting employees about changes in the workplace and allowing them to contribute in the making of decisions which may affect their health and safety at work.
- Managing risk by continually monitoring, reviewing, investigating and improving our standards and procedures.
- Establishing measurable objectives and targets.

Safety is an attitude you bring to work with you every day. Everybody who works at McDonald's has an important role to play.

Employee Responsibilities

All employees must:

- ☒ Assist managers in implementing this policy.
- ☒ Use the Hazard Log to identify and assess hazards.
- ☒ Report all work-related near misses, injuries and illnesses.

Security

Workplace Violence & Harassment

Violence and Harassment in the workplace can take many forms and may originate from our customers or from a co-worker.

All workplace violence issues should be reported to the shift manager and recorded through the Incident/Visit Report Form in the Restaurant Essentials Workbook (REW).

Violent Incidents

A violent incident occurs when someone is threatened or physically assaulted at work by a customer or visitor. Despite preventative measures, violent incidents can and do occur at the workplace.

Violent acts include;

- Verbal abuse either in person or over the phone.
- Written abuse.
- Discrimination.
- Bullying and intimidation (refer to the Diversity and Inclusion Policy).
- Physical or sexual assault.
- Armed robbery.
- Malicious damage.

Here are some general guidelines you can follow when dealing with an angry and/or violent customer:

Your safety

Remember, your safety is always the number one priority.

Listen

Stay calm and listen to the customer.

Be understanding

Understand the problem from the customer's perspective (empathy). Be courteous and patient.

Think of a solution

Solve the problem if you can or politely tell the customer that you will get a manager to help with the situation (or ask a co-worker to get a manager).

Record details

Record details after the incident. The Restaurant Manager will ensure post incident support is provided as required.

Know the rules

It is very important to follow security procedures when opening and closing the restaurant to ensure the safety of yourself and other team members.

No loitering

Who's hanging around?

People lingering in the parking lot or suspiciously hanging out around the restaurant may be "casing" the restaurant – observing the restaurant's procedures to determine the best time to commit a crime. If you see anyone suspicious, write down the person's license plate and description, then notify your manager.

Back Door

The back door is not to be opened between sunset and sunrise and never for normal entry or exit from the restaurant. A manager should be present whenever the back door is opened.

Close/Open

Never open doors that lead to the exterior of the restaurant whilst the restaurant is closed to the public.

Employees only

Extra people cause confusion, distract employees and give criminals opportunity. Don't go behind the counter if you're not working, and don't invite friends back there.

Ask for identification

If someone you don't recognise wants to enter the kitchen, ask to see a company picture ID badge. If the person can't show you one, get your manager. A business card is NOT acceptable except for representatives from Cerebos or Coca-Cola.

Opening and Closing the Restaurant

The Staggered Method of Opening and Closing helps ensure your safety when arriving and leaving the restaurant on open or close.

If there is a problem at any time such as someone being approached or if someone is in the restaurant, the lookouts should drive away honking the car horn and call the Police.

Car Parking

If your shift ends after 7.00pm, please park your car in the area designated by the Restaurant Manager.

Banking

Crew are not permitted to accompany managers to the bank. Security procedures and money procedures are confidential. For example, if someone asks you when your manager makes drop-offs at the bank, say that you don't know. Then tell your manager what happened.

Recommended Staggered Open Procedure

Enter as a team.

- 1 Meet at a designated meeting site.

- 2 Travel to the restaurant and drive around the parking lot and the restaurant. Check for anything unusual, such as broken windows, open doors or people and cars in the parking lot.

- 3 Manager enters the restaurant while other crew act as lookouts. Your Manager will lock the door, turn on the lights and check the restaurant for anything unusual.

If anyone approaches your manager, the lookout honks the horn, leaves and immediately calls the police.

Don't be a hero. If you are approached by someone who threatens you, listen to and follow what that person says.

- 4 Manager signals and 1st crew person enters the restaurant.
- 5 Last crew person enters the restaurant. The Manager locks the door behind them.

No one should enter or leave the restaurant until it is open for business.

Never open the door for anyone.

If anything looks suspicious, leave and call the Police.

Recommended Staggered Close Procedure

Leave as a team

- 1 All cars should be parked near the restaurant on dusk.

- 2 Manager checks the carpark from the exit door.

- 3 One crew person is let out, drives around the carpark to check for anything suspicious and parks near the carpark exit to act as lookout. One crew person stands near the phone ready to call Police if anyone is approached when leaving.

If anyone approaches the lookout employee, the person by the phone should call the Police immediately. Everyone else should move away from the glass doors.

- 4 Any remaining crew people are let out.

They stay in their car, lock the doors and have mobile phone or change for a payphone ready. Manager watches crew people return to their cars.

- 5 Manager exits and locks the door.

- 6 Everyone drives away together.

If anyone is approached by someone suspicious, the lookout honks the horn, drives off and calls the Police.

You should never remain in the restaurant alone after closing.

Your Manager will outline what the policy is for your restaurant.

Restaurant Code

Using a restaurant “code” can be a safe and easy way to alert other employees to a situation that may escalate, become violent and/or require the police to be called. Your restaurant code may refer to a fictional piece of equipment, a location or a person. For example, as your manager is about to approach a drunk customer in the dining room, they may say “I’m just going to check on Bruce”. Use of the restaurant code (“Bruce” in this case) lets the other employees know to keep an eye on the situation and call the police if the situation escalates.

Our restaurant code is: _____

During a Security Incident

McDonald’s takes all necessary steps to provide a safe working environment. However, in the event of a security incident, the S.A.F.E. procedure must be followed.

Stay Safe

Your safety is paramount. Do not resist the robber in any way; this could increase the chance of you being hurt. No amount of money or property is worth risking your personal safety or the safety of those around you.

Actions

- Adopt the surrender position.
- Slowly raise your arms above your head.
- Open your palms towards the robber.
- Put your head down and look away from the offender.
- Turn slightly side on to help make you look smaller and less threatening to the offender.
- Make sure your actions are open, honest and compliant with the person’s instructions at all times. Remain quiet and speak only if you are asked to.

Always reply to questions honestly. If asked a question, reply positively. For example, “The cash drawer is closed. I’ll get you the money, but I need to put an order into the register to get the drawer to open.” This will show the offender/s that you are cooperating as much as you possibly can.

When handing the money to the offender, place it on the counter and take a step back.

Focus

Focus on the demands of the offender and your responses.

Emotions

Stay calm.

Saying “Be calm” quietly to yourself will help. If you remain calm during the incident it may have a calming influence on the robber. Mentally speak to yourself, saying “Be calm” as often as possible.

After a Security Incident

When safe to do so:

Notify your manager

If the manager is not aware that the incident has occurred notify them as soon as it is safe to do so. Do not discuss the details of the incident with other crew or customers; this may confuse the details.

Give evidence

Write down the details of the incident as soon as you can. Include details like the offender's hair colour, eye colour, height, weight, clothing, accent, etc. Your manager may ask you to remain in the restaurant until the police have an opportunity to speak to you about the incident.

Protect evidence

Do not touch anything around where the incident took place in case you disturb evidence that will help police to catch the offender.

Counselling

You will be offered trauma counselling to help you deal with the situation. We strongly recommend that you participate in the counselling that is offered for all team members.

Cash Control Policy

We realise that people occasionally make mistakes and that the possibility of a shortage in our cash registers does exist. For this reason, you will not be required to make up cash shortages where error or inability is the cause.

However, this is a serious matter, and if you have significant cash shortage you will be notified and your cash register procedures will be reviewed. To avoid any misunderstandings, the following cash register policies must be followed:

- ☑ Always count your float before you begin serving. Never use another crew person's cash register.

- ☑ State the amount of every transaction and the amount of money being received in a loud, clear voice.
- ☑ Do not put the money under the slip in the drawer until the change has been made.
- ☑ Keep the cash drawer closed except when receiving payment for a transaction.
- ☑ Only operate the register assigned to you. Do not allow anyone else to use your cash register.
- ☑ Notify a manager if money must be refunded to a customer for any reason. The manager will complete the transaction.
- ☑ Refund procedures must be completed before another order is taken.
- ☑ A refund receipt must be printed and signed by the crew person and the manager.
- ☑ Never open the drawer or make change for your personal use.
- ☑ Notify a manager if a customer leaves behind money.
- ☑ Notify a manager if a customer wishes to pay by cheque. We do not cash personal cheques.
- ☑ If a customer presents a $50 or $100 note you may need to call the manager who will complete the transaction. Check with your manager for your restaurant's policy.
- ☑ Make sure you follow all of the steps in payment handling procedures, for the safety of your self, your customer and McDonald's.
- ☑ If you are unsure of how to correctly complete any transaction or unsure of a procedure, please ask a manager, e.g. EFTPOS.
- ☑ Managers must also be notified for Police Promo.
- ☑ When front counter crew are serving other crew, a manager must be notified, and a receipt must always be issued. The same care should be taken when serving friends or family, to avoid any misunderstandings.

Failure to meet/follow Cash Control Policy will result in disciplinary action. Please refer to the McDonald's Counselling Process.

If your restaurant has any additional requirements they will be communicated at Orientation to all employees.

Electronic Payments (EFTPos or Credit Card)

- ☑ When a customer pays by Credit card or EFTPOS, you must make sure the card remains visible to the customer at all times and return the card to the customer immediately.
- ☑ When processing the payment (with or without cash-out) ensure that you maintain contact with the PINpad at all times.
- ☑ Always remember to return the PINpad to the PINpad holder before completing the transaction.
- ☑ If the customer has asked for cash out, state the amount you are giving them when handing the customer the cash and receipt.
- ☑ Ensure you provide the customer with both the register receipt and the EFTPOS receipt when completing the transaction.

Counterfeit Notes

A counterfeit note is an imitation or copy of paper or polymer currency.

- Look for differences between the suspect note and the genuine note
- Check that the note has a clear window
Within the clear window look for a stylised gumflower ($5), windmill ($10), compass ($20), Southern Cross ($50), and lyrebird ($100). (The clear area should be part of the note and not an addition.)

- Feel the note
Feel that the area around the window is uniformly smooth. A genuine note is printed on polymer (plastic). Check the suspect note is not excessively thick or thin compared to a genuine note. It is difficult to start a tear along an edge of a genuine note.
- Look for the seven-pointed star
Hold the note up to the light. Diamond-shaped patterns printed on each side of the note should combine perfectly to form a seven-pointed star inside a circle.
- Look for the Australian Coat of Arms
Hold the note to the light. The Australian Coat of Arms should become visible under other printing.
- Feel for the slightly raised printing
The slightly raised printing (dark ink) can be felt by running a finger or fingernail across the main design elements, such as the portraits. Look for any print defects in the fine line patterns around the portraits (on notes other than the $5 note).
- Compare the background printing (multi-coloured inks and fine line patterns)
Check for irregularities such as less clearly defined patterns, thicker or thinner lines or colour distortion.
- Look for micro printing
With the aid of a magnifying glass, micro printed words should be clearly and sharply defined. They are located on the top left hand corner of the front of the $5 note, and generally near the portraits on the other notes.

Do not accept suspect notes. Politely inform the customer that you require the assistance of the Shift Manager. Inform the Shift Manager of the situation as they are trained in how to deal with suspect currency.

Environment

McDonald's Environment Policy

McDonald's believes that a business leader should also be an environmental leader, and is therefore committed to sustainable business practices. We are determined to conduct our operations in a manner that does not compromise the ability of future generations to meet their needs. McDonald's will continue our earth effort by challenging ourselves, our system and our partners.

Our objectives are to:

- Make environment a consideration in everything that we do;
- Provide leadership for our restaurants, suppliers and customers and encourage them to be proactive;

- Measure performance and through implementation and review of our programs, actions and procedures, improve it.

Specifically we will continue to target:

- Wastage of energy, water and materials;
- The production and supply of materials and products in a manner that may be detrimental to land, air or water; and

- Activities and procedures that have the potential to pollute our environment and enhance the greenhouse effect.

We will regularly review our commitment and:

- Measure performance;
- Review corporate goals, measures and targets;
- Review programs and their achievements; and
- Communicate our commitment and performance internally and externally.

Restaurant Litter Patrol Plan

Clean Streets is an important way McDonald's and your restaurant demonstrates responsible corporate citizenship within the local community. The main aim of the program is to reduce the amount of McDonald's packaging and all other litter found in the immediate community around each restaurant.

Why? Litter is less likely to occur in a clean environment. Therefore, if we can keep the area surrounding our restaurant as free from litter as possible, it will help maintain a tidier community.

- The Litter Patrol Plan details your restaurant's patrol area. It outlines the path you should take and the areas to focus on when you are asked to perform a Litter Patrol.
- For your protection, always wear the Safety Vest, disposable gloves, use the Litter Pickup Tool, know what to do if you find a Hazardous Item and be alert when working near stationary or moving vehicles.
- For safety reasons, Litter Patrols are only performed between sunrise & sunset.

Environment

Environment Protection

Water pollution

Water pollution occurs when any material – solid, liquid or gas - enters water or a drainage system that leads to water and results in a change to that water which is detrimental to the natural environment.

Activities at a restaurant that might result in pollution of the storm water include:

- Cleaning of the car park, drive- thru, corral, play land or terrace.
- Cleaning of windows, walls and outside furniture.
- Cleaning of drains.
- Leaks and spills from dumpsters.
- Leaks and spills from used cooking oil collection containers.
- Sewerage blockages/overflows and surcharges.
- Contractors employed to clean aspects of the restaurant such as the roof, kitchen exhaust and signage.
- Placing litter, soil, leaves, chemicals and waste water down a storm water drain or leaving them in a place where they can enter these drains.
- Service vehicle oil and petrol spills.
- Customers emptying drinks etc into drainage pits. Never allow waste water to flow near or into the storm water drain.

Activities at a restaurant that might result in pollution of the sewerage system include:

- Placing food particles or excess chemicals including detergents into the waste water drainage system will severely impact on the waste water (trade waste) quality. This directly impacts on the amount of treatment required by the water authorities to improve the water quality before it can be released back into the environment (into our rivers and oceans) and it impacts directly then on what the restaurant is charged to treat the waste water. If greasy waste and solid materials are put down the drains, eventually the drains block resulting in sewer overflows both inside and outside the restaurant.

- Excessive use of chemicals - for example detergents break down grease. If excessive detergent is used, the grease trap (which traps grease) becomes less effective and grease is then deposited further down the drainage lines, eventually resulting in blockages and/or problems with the approval that the restaurant has from the Water Authority to drain waste water to the sewer.

Dry wipe procedures are mentioned everywhere in our training materials because they are an environmentally responsible thing to do. They save water, prevent water pollution and drain blockages. Dry wipe procedures prevent materials from entering waste water and other drainage systems where they reduce the water quality.

DO not allow solid materials or heavy grease to enter the sewage system.

Cooking Oil

Used cooking oil is taken from the restaurant and reprocessed where possible, ultimately into animal foods and other products which can be reused. However, if the used oil is contaminated by food, chemicals and water, it has to be wasted as it cannot be recycled. Clean used cooking oil is important!

Ensure that all used cooking oil is free of these contaminants and that the used cooking oil container is used properly by doing the following:

- Never placing grease trough waste, shake and sundae mix or anything other than pure used cooking oil into the collection container. These should go into the appropriate allocated bin in the wash up area.
- Always making sure that the screen is in place prior to emptying any oil into the collection container.
- Always cleaning the screen after placing the oil in the container to ensure that used oil does not congeal onto the screen and block it. Oil congealed on the screen gives the appearance of the container being full and attracts vermin and insects.
- Immediately cleaning up any minor spills by following a dry wipe procedure and adhering to emergency procedures for any significant / major spills and overflows. Remember that one poor quality container of oil can contaminate and cause deterioration of a whole truckload of collected product.

Litter

Set an example by not littering. Apart from the fact that littering attracts an increasingly large fine if caught – litter attracts more litter. By keeping the area around the restaurant clean and tidy you will encourage others to do the same by setting an example. Practise this everywhere you go – not just at work.

Cigarette butts are the largest source of litter (about 50% of all items). Place cigarette butts in an ashtray or a bin or hold on to them until you find a bin. Packaging is no different – if you see packaging, particularly McDonald's packaging, on the ground pick it up, take it to a bin and place it safely inside so that it does not blow out and become litter again. Always do the same with your own waste.

Air Pollution and Odours

Odour is different for each person and what some find offensive, others are not concerned about. Odours can occur when the kitchen exhaust is not properly maintained and filters not regularly cleaned. Some people may even take offence to the slightest odour. Air pollution laws recognise odour as pollution. If you notice excessive cooking odours coming from the restaurant, advise a Manager.

Noise pollution

Offensive noise is an individual issue. What some people find offensive does not concern others. Remain conscious of activities or issues that might cause someone, particularly neighbours, some concern. Activities and equipment that might cause complaints include:

- Outside cleaning, particularly if a pressure cleaner is used.
- Customers entering, leaving or loitering on the site – talking, car stereos, irresponsible driving.
- Noisy plant and equipment for air conditioning, refrigeration and kitchen exhaust.
- Delivery and service vehicles entering and leaving the site and doing their work on site.

Advise a Manager of any incident or noise that might result in complaints or neighbour concerns. The Manager will also need to ensure that plant and equipment are adequately maintained to minimise wear and maintain operational efficiency, thereby keeping noise to a minimum.

Environmental Management

LEGISLATION

What is Environment Legislation?

Environment legislation is developed and enforced by all levels of government and is designed to protect the natural environment and to minimise the impact of human activity. The legislation creates a responsibility on all individuals and businesses to protect and preserve nature and to maintain a duty of care in the conduct of our activities.

Why do you need to know about environment legislation?

The legislation creates a responsibility on you to preserve and protect the environment. You make a difference through the way in which you carry out your responsibilities at all times. Good work practices reduce environmental impacts such as pollution and wastage of water, energy and materials and reduce the risk of non compliance.

In doing your work in an environmentally responsible manner, you are taking all due care and ensuring compliance with legal requirements. You are also protecting and preserving the environment.

What does the legislation do?

The implementation of most environmental legislation is the responsibility of the governments in each State and Territory or of the Federal Government and the aims of each are to:

- Provide for the protection, restoration and enhancement of the environment.
- To promote ecologically sustainable development.
- To promote a co-operative approach to the protection and management of the environment.
- To reduce risks to human health and prevent the degradation of the environment.
- To provide increased opportunities for public participation in environment protection.

What are our duties under the legislation?

Almost all environment legislation relates to the activities that we carry out everyday, both at home and at work and makes us responsible for everything that we do or don't do (action and inaction). This applies to companies, their directors and the individuals who work there.

This in particular applies to those activities, actions or inactions that result in or are likely to result in degradation of the environment in any way.

As an employer, employee, individual and even as a Manager, we must be able to demonstrate that we have taken all due diligence (every possible means available) to avoid environmental pollution or degradation including for example:

- Supply of equipment;
- Provision of information, training and supervision;
- Compliant facilities;

- An environmental management system and program;
- Management and supervision of services, products, suppliers and visitors (including customers);
- Use equipment that is provided and use as directed.

Ecologically Sustainable Development

Also known as ESD, this is a term that is used constantly in discussions concerning the environment and corporate social responsibility.

What does it mean?

“ESD” is meeting the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their needs (United Nations).

For ESD to occur, society today must enable economic, social and environmental well being and success. Everyone must work together to achieve ESD. No one can achieve ESD on their own.

Environment Management

1. Learn the Environment Policy

An Environmental Management System is based on a company’s Environmental Policy which sets the direction. The policy states our objectives and commitments and its effectiveness relies on individual effort, commitment and adherence to the policy as well as the company and management providing appropriate training and tools for all staff to effectively and efficiently manage and operate an environmentally responsible business.

2. Report incidents and issues to managers immediately

All incidents having environmental implications should be reported. Once advised the Manager is required to report all incidents to customer service and follow procedures. The Manager will need your support to ensure that harm to the environment is minimised in any such occurrence. It is important to report the incident so that we can put preventative measures in place to minimise the risk of recurrence.

3. Report visits from authorities, such as the local Council, to managers immediately

All visits from an authority must also be reported utilising the Incident/Visit report form. The Manager needs to find out the officer’s details as well as details of the reason for his/her visit to the restaurant. Ensure that you co-operate with the officer and refer them to the Manager as soon as possible.

4. Be informed

Read the in-store information such as the “Caring for the Environment” brochure and the environment section published in every issue of ‘Wrapt’ magazine, so that you are up to date on current projects and achievements. Use this information to promote McDonald’s concern for the environment amongst your friends and colleagues.

5. Be proactive

Make suggestions for environmental improvement programs and projects at meetings or by submitting your ideas to your Restaurant Manager.

Environmental Preservation

Conserve Energy

The success of an energy management or conservation program depends heavily on the cooperation of every individual. You may feel that the amount of energy you can save individually is insignificant. Collectively if everyone does a little bit to contribute, significant savings can be made.

Energy efficiency means better housekeeping. Some housekeeping tips that you can use to save energy include the following:

- Use the restaurant's EQUIPMENT FIRE UP SCHEDULE.
- Turn off lights when room or area not in use – except where lighting relates to maintaining security.
- Check and switch off equipment that is not likely to be used in the short term. Check with the Manager on duty first.
- Think of ways that you can achieve your work tasks in a more energy efficient manner.
- Close doors and windows to improve efficiency of heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems.
- If you notice any of the restaurants automatic controls to be broken or not operating as they should, report them to a Manager.
- Offer suggestions as to more efficient ways of implementing procedures.

Conserve Water

"Watch Every Drop". We need to get smart with water and look after the quantity and quality of water we use and dispose of. Water is essential to maintaining the cleanliness and safety of our restaurants, but we must also use it efficiently and be conscious of what we put down the drains.

To save water in the amenities:

- Don't turn on the taps too far.
- Use the half flush toilet button when you can.
- Turn on the tap when washing your hands only when you need to rinse them.
- Report leaking taps to the Manager.
- Report toilet cisterns and flushing mechanisms on urinals that run excessively or leak.

To reduce the waste in water in the amenities

- Use soaps as directed.
- Use a bin for rubbish – not the toilet or the sink.

To save water in the kitchen and wash up

- Use a plug in the sink for rinsing instead of running a tap continuously.
- Report leaking taps to the Manager.
- Fully load dishwashers before turning them on.
- Do not leave tap running whilst scrubbing.

To reduce the waste in water in the kitchen and wash up

- Drain the 'wash, rinse and sanitise' sinks only as required to preserve QA standards.
- Always put solids such as food scraps in a solid waste bin – never down the drains. Always dry wipe, sweep or mop before you wash.
- Always put grease and oil in the used oil container. However, if it contains water or chemicals it must be contained and disposed of in a solid waste bin – never down the drains. The waste water can then be poured into an appropriate sewage system drain.
- Do not pour undiluted chemicals down the drains.

- Ensure sink strainers are in place and used properly to prevent solids from entering and blocking the drain.
- Do not overuse chemicals and detergents.
- Do not remove screens from floor drains prior to or during cleaning. They are there on purpose to prevent solids from entering the sewage system and drains.

To save water outside the restaurant:

- Sweep paths and other paved areas.
- Report watering systems that water paved areas instead of plants.
- Report watering systems that operate during rain.
- Minimise the use of hosing for cleaning.

To reduce waste in water outside the restaurant

- Be aware as to which drains are storm water (usually identified by a large or long pit with a heavy metal grate covering the opening, and which drains lead to sewer - always under cover to prevent access by storm water, much smaller and usually a light weight grate over the top (similar to an floor drain inside the restaurant).
- Where possible place rubbish bins somewhere other than directly over a storm water drainage pit.
- Close lids on bins to prevent water and vermin access.

Manage and minimise waste

Litter is a major issue for the Quick Service Restaurant (QSR) industry of which McDonald's is a significant part. Help to control litter that gives McDonald's a bad reputation by:

- ☑ Offering to do Litter Patrol and making sure that McDonald's packaging is not left in inappropriate places.

- ☑ Pick up McDonald's packaging whenever you see it on the ground and place it in a bin. Set a positive example to others.
- ☑ If litter bins in the car park are full, report them to the Manager.
- ☑ If you notice an area near the restaurant that is littered with used McDonald's packaging, report it to the Manager. These areas are known as litter hot spots and become a target for the public and the local Councils.

Cardboard recycling is an important way of reducing the amount of restaurant waste going to landfill. Where separate facilities exist at your restaurant for cardboard, ensure that it is ALL separated from the general waste. By doing this you will also reduce the restaurants waste costs.

Clean paper waste and newsprint can also be placed in with the cardboard for recycling. Reduce the amount of waste by using a trash masher to compact dining room and kitchen bins before emptying them. The restaurant will use less garbage bags and have more room in the dumpster.

Production plans are important to reduce food and packaging wastage and waste and therefore also costs. Follow production plans to reduce wastage.
